- Actions to stop doing:

- The Team should stop working nonstop
 - The team will stop overworking ourselves, since we lost a team member we've been working on the project more than we should.
- The team should stop asking one of its members to show up to the meetings
 - One of the members does not show up to meetings and he has completely stonewalled us.

- Actions to start doing:

- The team will only coordinate with two of the members
 - We will only coordinate with two of the members and stop reaching out to the third member who does not reply
- The team should schedule more work sessions together
 - It is better for communication and we can encourage each other to work more effectively with less distractions.
 - It is important since we only have 2 members
- The team should ask for more assistance
 - ask friends that know some concepts, ask TA's or professors

- Actions to keep doing:

- The team will keep communicating as we have been doing
 - We have been very well communicated, especially since one of our teammates is working and we have managed to keep the line of communication open, this only applies to 2 of the members now.
- The team will keep scrum meetings at 8:00 pm
 - The new schedule is working for the team
- The team will continue to not give up
 - since losing a partner more work has been placed on the remaining partners and we will continue to not give up.
